J.D./M.B.A. Program Overview

The School of Law and the Stern School of Business at New York University offer a dual program whereby a student may simultaneously pursue study leading to both the degree of Juris Doctor (JD) and the degree of Master of Business Administration (MBA). Through careful course planning the dual degree student can complete both degrees in four years. Five years is normally required when each degree is pursued independently.

The combined program offers insight into the business and legal sides of commerce. The program provides an excellent background for careers in law and/or business and is intended to broaden career perspectives. For example, graduates of the program can use the dual degree training in law firms, corporate counsel offices, investment and accounting firms, or nonprofit agencies and government institutions.

The first two years of the program are spent at NYU School of Law, the third year is spent at NYU Leonard N. Stern School of Business and the fourth is divided between the two schools.

Applicants may apply directly to the dual degree J.D./M.B.A. program, or may apply to Stern in either their first or second year of their law school studies at NYU. Students must be admitted to both programs before starting the M.B.A. portion of the dual degree.

Admissions

The NYU School of Law and NYU Stern have coordinated their procedures and created a single application process designed to simplify applying to the J.D./M.B.A. program.

Application Review

While there is only one J.D./M.B.A. application, each school has a separate Admissions Committee and admissions process. You may be admitted to both programs, only one program, or neither program in this admissions process. Dual degree applicants will be considered for admission based on the same standards as the rest of the applicant pool.

During the third year and fall of the fourth year students register for courses through and pay tuition to Stern. The final semester (spring of the fourth year) students register for courses through and pay tuition to the School of Law. Students following this schedule may need to take more than the standard 15-credit course load in one or two semesters. Please contact the dual degree advisor for the school in which you are registered for more information. Approval for credit overloads is required before registering.

Registration Procedures

To simplify the registration process, it is important that the J.D./M.B.A. student notify the dual degree advisor in both schools of registration plans before the beginning of each term. The School of Law has a specific notification forms which can be found at: <http://www.law.nyu.edu/academicservices/forms/index.htm>

Students are not permitted to register for courses that overlap in dates and/or times during the regular fall and spring semester, or during any winter or summer session. Stern winter session courses that conflict with the start of the Law School spring semester will be posted on the Jacobson Leadership Program in Law and Business website at:

<http://www.law.nyu.edu/leadershipprogram/curriculum/index.htm>

Students should also be aware that grades for the Stern Spring “Doing Business In...” course may not be received in time for certification for the July bar exam. Additionally, students who participate in these courses in May of their graduating year will have their degrees conferred in September.

Students in the J.D./M.B.A. program may not take Law School course Accounting for Lawyers or Corporate Finance.

Additionally, each school outlines its policies regarding fees, grades, requirements, discipline, examinations, etc. The policies of both schools, except as modified by this manual, will apply to students in the dual degree program. Please review the following links:

School of Law: <http://www.law.nyu.edu/academicservices> (see Academic Policies Guide).

Cross-Registration during the Fourth Year of Study*

Students who register online via ABRA and AIS will be double-billed until their final schedule is confirmed with the dual degree advisor at both Law and Stern.

Fall Registration: Registration through Stern

A J.D./M.B.A. student must register through Stern for a minimum of three of the eight full-time semesters in attendance. In order to register for courses in the Fall of the fourth year at both schools, in addition to completing the School of Law’s form, the student must:

1. Request Stern courses for the Fall semester via AIS during the online lottery submission period (typically in late-April).
2. Request Fall semester Law courses via the Law School Auction Based Registration Algorithm (“ABRA” bidding system) during the online submission during the applicable deadlines (typically begins in June).
3. Meet with the dual degree advisor from both Law and Stern to confirm registration selections and the school in which he/she will be registered.
4. Pay full tuition at the Stern rate for both business and law courses.

Spring Registration: Registration through the School of Law

A J.D./M.B.A. student must register through the School of Law for a minimum of five of the eight full-time semesters in attendance. In order to register for courses in the Spring of the fourth year at both schools, in addition to completing the School of Law's form, the student must:

1. Request Spring Law courses via ABRA during the applicable deadlines (anticipated to begin in late-July).
2. Request Stern courses for the Spring semester via AIS during the online lottery submission period (typically in October).
3. Meet with the dual degree advisor from both Law and Stern to confirm registration selections and the school in which he/she will be registered.
4. Pay full tuition at the School of Law rate for both law and business courses. The School of Law will confirm registration of business courses with Stern upon payment.

*Students must be registered at Stern for one semester and Law at one semester in the fourth year of the J.D./M.B.A. program. We recommend that students register at Stern in Fall and Law in Spring; however, students may choose to do the opposite as long as the majority of their credits are in the school of "residence".

Financial Aid

Scholarships and Loans

Merit scholarships are awarded based on the admissions application. Applicants for financial aid (loan programs) must file the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). Applicants are encouraged to complete the FAFSA as early as possible in the application cycle, noting that the FAFSA becomes available after January 1 each year. The New York University FAFSA Code is 002785. This is the only application form required by Stern. Stern awards financial aid for a maximum of three (3) semesters. With the exception of federal Stafford loans, each school may award a different amount of aid. The aid can only be used at the awarding school during eligible periods of enrollment.

Dual degree students are strongly encouraged to coordinate the financial aid process with both Stern and the School of Law each semester.

School of Law

Qualified students of the School of Law have the opportunity to finance their Law studies through the use of federal aid, private aid, or institutional aid.

Financial aid is awarded to qualified students of the School of Law for up to five (5) semesters on a per semester basis and JD students are evaluated for need and merit based aid before commencing their first semester at the Law School. Unless otherwise indicated, institutional aid (scholarships) awarded by the School of Law are not applicable during semesters Law students are enrolled at Stern. Application material beyond the FAFSA is required for such aid and must be received by April 15th or within ten (10) business days of being admitted to the School of Law.

For further information about this process students should contact the Office of Student Financial Services at law.finaid@nyu.edu.

Stern School of Business

Merit scholarships are awarded based on the admissions application. Domestic applicants for financial aid (loan programs) must file the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). Applicants are encouraged to complete the FAFSA as early as possible in the application cycle, noting that the FAFSA becomes available on January 1 each year. This is the only application form required by the Stern School. International applicants are eligible only for private loans and will need to fill out the loan applications for their specific lenders after they are admitted. International applicants may need a US co-signer when applying for private loans. The Stern School awards financial aid for a maximum of three (3) semesters.

Stern Teaching Fellowships and Graduate Assistantships

J.D./M.B.A. students may obtain a Teaching Fellowship (TF) or Graduate Assistantship (GA) position. Eligibility requirements for these positions are completion of 9 credits at Stern and maintenance of a 3.0 GPA. Payment for these positions is in the form of tuition remission at Stern. Receipt of tuition remission is contingent upon full-time enrollment through Stern. It is up to the student to secure a TF/GA position with a faculty member or administrative office. Please note the following guidelines when making decisions regarding TF/GA opportunities:

- 1) Students will only receive tuition remission for TF/GA opportunities when they are in residence at the school in which they are a TF/GA. Students who TF/GA for one school while in residence at the other will be paid via paycheck and those payments will be subject to all applicable taxes.
- 2) For a comprehensive listing of positions as well as detailed information, please visit the Student Jobs website (<http://www.stern.nyu.edu/CurrentStudents/StudentJobs/index.htm>)

Tuition and Fees

The J.D./M.B.A. student pays full tuition at the school through which she/he is registered each semester. If a student exceeds the maximum number of credits and/or courses permitted per semester by the school in which she/he is registering, the tuition and fees for the additional credits must be paid to that school.

The normal course load for law students is 12-15 credits. Fourth year J.D./M.B.A. students registered through the School of Law and taking Stern courses may take a maximum of 16 credits (combined business and law courses) at no additional cost with the prior approval from the Law School's Office of Academic Services.

The normal course load for Stern students is 12-15 credits. J.D./M.B.A. students registered through Stern and taking courses at the School of Law may take a maximum of 18 credits (combined law and business courses) at no additional cost with prior approval from the Dual Degree Advisor.

Career Services

Students are encouraged to take advantage of all counseling, and career development services at both the School of Law and the Stern School of Business throughout their academic program. Career counselors are available to aid students in areas such as resume preparation, interviewing techniques, networking contacts and career option assessment. Dual degree students should become familiar with the various career services offerings and timelines early in the academic program at each respective school.

School of Law

The Office of Career Services (OCS) begins working with students in October of their first year. Typically, many J.D./M.B.A. students will explore traditional legal careers during their first and second summers, and then pursue business opportunities for their third summer. J.D./M.B.A. students have access to the OCS throughout their course of study. OCS organizes job-search panels, provides mock interviews and individual counseling sessions. Students who are interested in non-legal “alternative” employment have access to individual counseling as well as panels and programs such as “Investment Banking for Lawyers”, the Dean’s Roundtable Series and opportunities for “Field Trips” to alternative employers. J.D./M.B.A. students are encouraged to take advantage of the unique opportunities available to network with NYU Law alumni, many of whom are prominent leaders in the business and financial world. All current students are invited to the annual J.D./M.B.A. Alumni event each Fall to network with alumni in various industries. There are also numerous panels and programs organized through both the J.D./M.B.A. Association and Law & Business student groups. In addition, all J.D./MBA students are asked to attend a group session with OCS Counselor Wendy Siegel, in order to map out their career trajectory, EIW participation, and to ensure that they inform their employers of their status as a dual degree student.

Stern School of Business

Dual degree students must participate in the full-time MBA Ignite program, as outlined in this document, in order to have full access to Stern's Office of Career Development (OCD). If J.D./M.B.A. students complete the Ignite Career Development Program during the first year of the MBA program, students are eligible to participate in the summer internship recruiting season. The Ignite Career Development Program consists of required and optional workshops, panel discussions, mini-courses, mock interviews, resume critiques and functionally-specific strategy groups. The program begins with the Office of Career Development’s Launch presentation and continues through the Fall semester. J.D./M.B.A. students are eligible to participate in the full-time recruiting process in their second year of the MBA program after completing all OCD requirements.
